LES APPELLATIONS D'ORIGINES CONTRÔLÉES

ALERIA COLONIA

Settled by Phocéans after their founding of Massalia.
They cultivating indigenous vines & cuttings brought from abroad.

Les Phocéens de Massalia développent des cépages endémiques nourris d'apports d'autres colonies.

MARE NOSTRUM

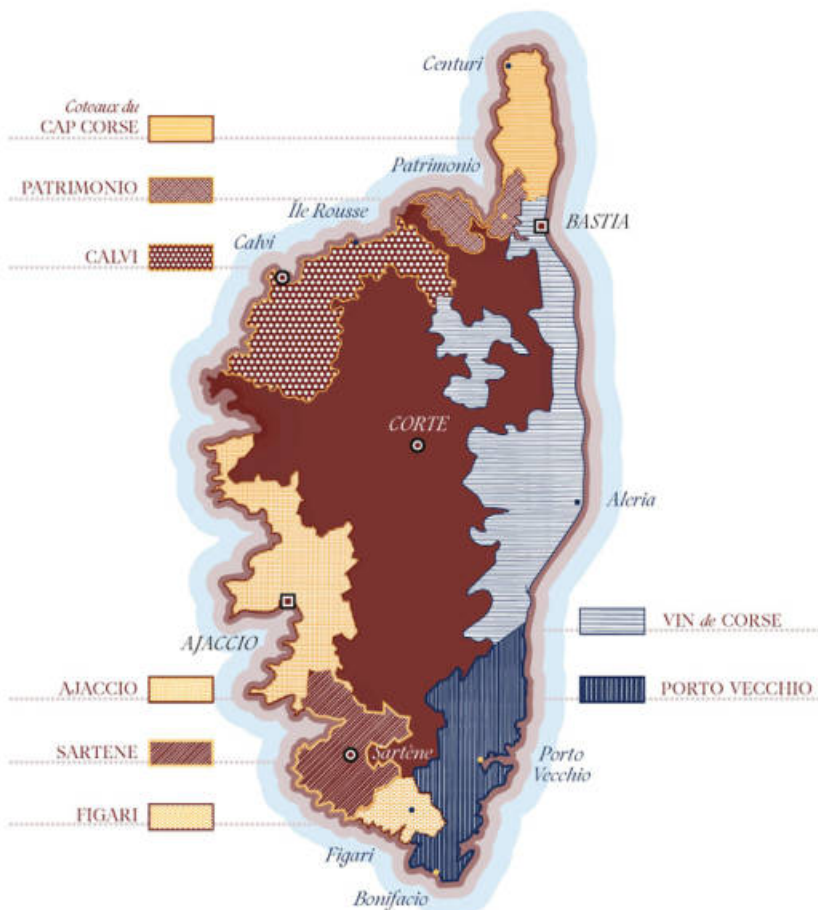

During the 13th century the Republic of Genoa was introduced the Sangiovese grape to the island which became Nielluccio.

Sous domination Génoise le cépage Sangiovese est introduit dans l'île, qui donnera le Nielluccio, typique de la Corse.

NAPOLÉON

Coming from a winemaking family, Napoleon allowed to export wine duty-free across the French Empire.

L'empereur des Français permettra d'exporter le vin Corse à travers tout l'Empire.

Corsica has 9 wine appellations with Vin de Corse AOC status :

The Patrimonio was the first to receive AOC designation in 1968.

The Ajaccio AOC includes some of Corsica's highest elevated vineyard land.

The smaller sub-regions of : Coteaux du Cap Corse, Calvi, Figari, Porto Vecchio & Sartène AOCs mandate lower yields than the Vin de Corse AOC.

The Muscat du Cap Corse AOC includes vin doux naturel - Sweet wine produced in the northern peninsular tip of the island

In only a few decades, the Guigal family has reached extraordinary heights to become an icon of the northern Rhône vineyard.

It owes its success in part to the cuvées produced from three legendary parcels of the Côte-Rôtie terroir: La Mouline, La Turque and La Landonne.

The Guigal family enjoy a shining reputation amongst wine lovers the world over.

This reputation stems from their titanic efforts in developing the Côte Brune and the Côte Blonde.

Here, the LA-LA-LA cuvées reign supreme.

Seduced by the exceptional character, the critic Robert Parker has blessed them all at some point with the rare 100/100 Parker Score.

VINS de la VALLÉE DU RHÔNE

LES APPELLATIONS D'ORIGINES CONTRÔLÉES

The Rhône Valley is divided into 2 sub-regions with distinct vinicultural traditions :
the Northern Rhône
Septentrional
&
the Southern Rhône
Méridional

The northern sub-region produces red wines from the Syrah grape, worldwide renowned as Côte Rôtie or Hermitage.

The southern sub-region produces an array of red, white and rosé wines, often blends of several grapes such as in Châteauneuf-du-Pape.
